

fragments 1 thru 5

- 1 Buddha is a diesel
train
always passing passing
left to right
 - 2 & i don't like
other people who have to lie to other people about
me to keep them from them
 - 3 & of course you realize no matter wat we're sayin there's two drunks in a bar havin the same conversation
 - 4 & the simplest way to equalize wealth in a capitalist system is levying 10 x's more tax on properties not lived upon by the owner
 - 5 & some say laffing water committed suicide &
some say settin buzzard never says nuthin no more
- everybody's wrong sometimes

letter to the poet
for g. m.

the grown up
dragons all lie slain.
there is nothing left
but to wipe off
yolk & white &
let the thing grow
a little bit. but mead drunks & blugeons are all
that's needed to
slay the monsters
anymore. what
romance is reduced
by this? dirty
rivers wash us all.
& all the old dragons
remain lying, slain.
